

Jute-iful send-off

THE jute industry could come back from the dead thanks to a firm that uses the rope-making textile to make COFFINS and other funeral accessories.

Sandra Thomson, 52, has set up J Funerals in Dundee – once known as the world's jute capital.

She said: "Old spinners and weavers are keen to be buried in jute because it was a large part of their life. And the coffins are totally eco-friendly."
